Waterlow baronetcy heir changes mind and takes title

By R. BARRY O'BRIEN

MR PHILIP WATERLOW, former head of Waterlow and Sons, the printers, who declined to assume the title of a baronetcy he inherited on his father's death in 1954, surprised his family last night with an announcement that he now intends to use it.

The statement said: "Mr and Mrs Philip Waterlow wish to be known as Sir Philip and Lady Waterlow."

Mr Waterlow, 75 today, divorced his wife last September after a 20-year separation and his family were not aware he had re-married.

His former wife, Mrs Annie Catherine Waterlow, obtained a judicial separation from him in 1951. She lives in Torremolinos, Spain. He was granted a decree nisi in 1953 and the decree absolute in 1954.

only son by his first marriage, in 1923. The marriage was dissolved in 1937, the year that Mr Philip Waterlow married his second wife.

Mr Peter Rupert Waterlow also married twice. His first wife, Christopher's mother, died in 1961, and he married a widow Mrs Ruth Margaret Davies in 1962. He died in 1969 at the age of 44.

In the same year his widow married Sir Arthur Norrington, Warden of Wnchester College and a former Vice-Chancellor of Oxford University. Christopher lives with them at Grenville Manor, Haddenham, Bucks.

He is a pupil at St John's, Beaumont, Windsor, the preparatory school for the leading Roman

MEMORANDA

THE WATERLOW FAMILY.

THE name of Waterlo, in England, is found first at Canterbury, in 1633, on the marriage registers of the Society of Protestant Refugees, called "Walloons," settled there, and who, as a religious association, assembled in the Undercroft of Canterbury Cathedral—this portion of the Cathedral had been granted to the Walloons for religious worship in French some time antecedent to the above date (1568). The worship was conducted in the French language—service is still (1900) conducted in the same tongue, and the congregation yet, to some extent, consists of descendants of the Walloons, and also of descendants of some of the refugees of 1685, called "Huguenots," driven out of France by the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

The Walloons were the inhabitants of a considerable part of the French and Austrian Low Countries, viz., those of Artois, Hainault, Namur, Luxembourg, and part of Flanders and Brabant. The language of the Walloons was the ancient unadulterated Gaulish.

An attempt has been made with much interest and determination, and much labour and time have been expended, in an endeavour to trace down to the present time, by reference to unimpeachable documentary evidence, a positive chain of descent of the family WATERLOW from the earliest record of that name in England (1633), but for the reasons indicated presently, the attempt has proved only partially successful, although enough evidence has been found to allow of a positive conviction that all of the name now in England have descended from the WALRAN WATERLO living at Canterbury, with his wife, son, and daughter, in 1633, and there can be no doubt that he was a Walloon refugee from Flanders.

While the refugee families retained their original language, and remained attached to their foreign protesting Church communities, continuing their allegiance to their pastors and their attachment to the form of religious worship and discipline they had imported, the exact and punctilious mode of registering baptisms, betrothals and marriages, in connection with their churches, as then practised in France and Flanders, was maintained here by the refugees in the mode which had always been customary in their original country; but as their own language gradually fell into disuse in England, and as the families to which they belonged gradually, by intermarriages with English people, the necessity of business and the intercourse of daily life, lost all specially foreign characteristics, except their names, submission to their old church customs not only became weakened but died out, and their baptisms and marriages were performed and registered in the English Parish Churches, and the burials were always compulsorily in English churchyards and recorded in their Registers.

So long as the connection of the refugees and their descendants with their own churches continued, it is comparatively easy to follow families and trace their descent, and even their change of neighbourhood by the registers; but when the amalgamation with the native population was pretty well consolidated, and the foreign language lost, and the registration of baptisms and marriages of the foreign community passed entirely into the hands of the National Church, the difficulty of tracing individuals is enormous. Some of the difficulty is with the people themselves, as the place where a ceremony should be performed was arbitrarily chosen (with marriages it was especially so); but the chief difficulty is with the careless work of the officers appointed to keep the registers. The ecclesiastical registrars often deputed the work to the uneducated parish clerks, who were inexact, and often very ignorant. The particulars given in the registers are meagre, and the spelling of names is very incorrect and irregular; often phonetic, so that it is difficult to recognise a name of foreign origin in its English dress; in fact, the national records of births, marriages, and burials, kept by officials specially paid to do the duty antecedent to the Registration Act of 1837, are a national disgrace. It is hardly possible to imagine any work being worse done.

The Churches established and used in London by the Refugees were for some time very numerous. The principal Church in the Metropolis was in Threadneedle Street. This Church seems to have been a centre for all the foreign Churches in the kingdom, and to have been well endowed. The registers bear evidence that all the East end Churches at all events were branches of this Church, and controlled therefrom. It seems that the registers of the small Churches at the East of London were required to be returned to and deposited at this Church; but the observance of this regulation was probably very irregular—in some cases, seven or eight volumes belonging to one Church, in other cases only one or two, are extant; and as to the majority of the Churches, they have been lost or destroyed, or are hidden away unnoticed. The extracts given hereafter have been collected mostly from such as have been deposited at the General Registration Office, Somerset House, and from these the Pedigree attempted to be constructed is mainly deduced.

Some of the foreign Churches at one time existing at the East end of London were :—

L'Eglise de l'Hopital—at one time in Long Hedge Field, Spitalfields.

La Patente, or La Nouvelle Patente, originally in Glover's Hall; then in Paternoster Row, Spittlefields; then in Crispin Street, and afterwards in Brown's Lane.

Also in Spitalfields: L'Eglise de Perle Street;
L'Eglise de l'Artillerie;
Wheeler Street Chapel;
Black Eagle Street Chapel;
Crispin Street Chapel;
Petticoat Lane Chapel;

and in Shoreditch: L'Eglise de St. Jean, Swan Fields;
Slaughter Street Chapel;
Three Crown Court Chapel;
Hoxton Chapel;
St. Martin's Alms House Chapel, Hog Lane;
Church Street Meeting, Hoxton;
Vinegar Row Meeting; and Glass House Street Meeting.

The name of WATERLOW, with and without the final "w," was, and still is of very frequent recurrence in the registers at Valenciennes and Lille, and indeed so numerous were the persons of the name in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries entered on the registers, that at this time the difficulty of identifying any particular family is almost insuperable, but there seems no reason to doubt that in England the first of the name settled was Walran, or Walleran Waterlo, who with his wife and son were living at Canterbury about 1620; this date is assumed from the fact that the son was married there in 1633.

The name in the registers still extant in England is sometimes spelled Vaterlot, Vatterlot, and Vaterlo, and this has suggested the probability of a connection with the family of that name living at an earlier period in the district of Alençon.

Anthony Waterlo, painter and engraver, has also been assumed to be an ancestor of the present family. He is believed to have been born at Utrecht, about 1618; time of death uncertain—some say 1660, others 1679; he died at Utrecht. His name is found spelled sometimes with and sometimes without the final "w" sometimes Waterloo, and in one or two cases "Vaterlo."

There are said to be, besides his paintings, 136 of his etchings extant. The most celebrated print is "The Water Mill." "L'homme au bord de la Riviere" is scarce.

The family name, in one form or another, is found in "The Armorial General Manuscript," kept at the Bibliothéque National, rue Richelieu, Paris; and there is no doubt but that some of those of the name referred to in this record were connections of the present family, and could be so identified by a strict examination of the ancient registers still extant at Valenciennes,* Lille, and Alençon;† but a cursory review of the registers at these places disclosed the fact that the labour and expense would be very great, and the pursuit was abandoned; nevertheless as something of interest was found in the registers now deposited at the Bibliothéque National, some little account of them is here given.

The registers were compiled in pursuance of an enactment of the 20th November, 1696. Prior to that date there does not seem to have been any special restriction as to the use of arms, and representations were frequently made to the sovereign, by the nobility, that burghers, merchants, and other persons to whom no grant of arms had ever been made, were in the habit of using certain armorial bearings or seals bearing devices in the nature of arms. The king seems not to have noticed their complaints until it was suggested that a good deal of money might be made out of a registration system, and accordingly he put what is called by one writer "a tax upon vanity" (impôt sur la vanité), and it is said that "the establishment of the 'Armorial General' was nothing but a financial measure." Officers were appointed to cause the registration of the arms of all persons, domains, companies, bodies, and commonalties in the kingdom. The fees paid on registration were £20 for private individuals, and higher in proportion for corporations, &c. These fees produced upwards of seven millions. A penalty of £300 was levied for use of arms without registration. After payment of the fee the arms were blazoned in the register, and a certificate in the following form was issued :—

* Valenciennes, Northern France—taken by Louis XIV., 1677, and annexed 1678.

† Alençon, Northern France—a Duchy annexed by the Crown of France after the battle of Pavia—1525.

"Par ordonnance rendue le . . . . par M.M. les "Commissaires généraux du Conseil, députés sur le fait des "Armoiries."

"Celles de N . . . . telles qu'elles sont ici peintes "et figurées, après avoir été reçues, ont été enregistrées à l'Armorial "Général dans le registre coté . . . Généralité de . . . en "conséquence du payement des droits reglés par les tarifs et arrêts "du Conseil du 20 Novembre 1696. En foi de quoi le prèsent "brevet a été delivré à Paris par nous, Charles d'Hozier, conseiller "du Roi, Garde de l'Armorial Général, etc.

"Signé : D'HOZIER."

Where the application had been made at one of the district registries, the papers were sent to Paris to be approved, and after return and payment of the fee the certificate was issued.

At the end of the register is a summary of the fees received, which were apparently then accounted for to the Commissioners, and there follows a certificate signed by the Commissioners, ordering the registration of the said armorial bearings, and dated Paris, 29th April, 1700. The registry was closed in 1709.

These registers are in two parts, one setting out the names, &c., of the parties claiming their right to Armorial bearings, with a written description of the arms and the amount of the fee paid ; the other has the arms blazoned or figured against the names of the persons to whom the right was granted. To the former there are alphabetical indices (which however cannot entirely be relied upon) ; the latter registers have no index, and the names do not appear in the same order, though as far as can be judged they contain the same names as the descriptive registers.

The entries under the head "de L'Ille" do not all apply to the town of that name, but to the district, including the town of Valenciennes.

The following extracts of entries relating to probable ancestors or connections of the WATERLOW family are taken from the "Armorial General Manuscript."

* Bernay, where the family of de Vattelot registered their arms, is in Normandy, about 45 miles inland from the coast at Honfleur or Havre.

The pages which follow this contain all the names the compiler, the late Alfred James Waterlow, found up to 1883, but these by no means exhaust the records previous to that date. Many records, as before stated, are missing altogether, probably lost; but very many more, which are still preserved, have not been consulted, partly on account of the expense, which is considerable, but mainly on account of the places of deposit being so numerous and widely distant, also the time at which searches can be made being so arbitrary and inconvenient. The reviser of this present (1900) Edition of the Memoranda, has not made any additions to the ancient records as first compiled, but has contented himself with bringing the family history up to date, by simply adding the Marriages, Births, and Deaths, that have occurred in the Family since 1883, together with any distinction that may have been gained, that has not previously been recorded.

WALLERAN WATERLO

Walleran Waterlo came from Lille in French Flanders. We do not know who he married but he arrived in Caterbury with his son Walran Waterlo

WALRAN WATERLO

Walran married Marguerite Wearre daughter of John Wearre at the Walloon Church Canterbury September 12th. 1633. Marguerite died in Canterbury 8th October, 1678. Walran died at Canterbury 12th May 1684. They had seven children the eldest being Walran Waterlow who was baptised at Canterbury 31st August, 1634.

WALRAN WATERLO

Walran was very much somebody as Freeman of thw Weavers Company, London. He married Jeanne Deuville daughter of Mattheiu Deuville native of Lobarre at Canterbury 17th August 1656. The family had stuck to the Flemish connection for a few generations but seem to have changed because when Jeanne was buried at Stepney on 8th November 1715 she was described as Jane Waterlow Widow. Walran and Jeanne had a big family and our man is Samuel who was the fourth child, born in Canterbury 25th November 1663 and baptised on 6th December.

SAMUEL WATERLOW.

We have lots of details about Samuel's twelve children but know nothing about either of his wives except the second was called Mary. Samuel had moved to Threadneedle Street before his first child was born in 1687. This first son was christened Samuel but died young as our man was baptised 14th September 1701 and named Samuel. I am typing on 14th September 1983 so we are 282 years late for the party.

SAMUEL WATERLOW

We know that Samuel married around 1722 but we do not know who he married and all we do know his that he had a son Josiah Waterlow

SAMUEL WATERLOW

We know that Samuel married around 1722 but we do not know who he married and all we do know his that he had a son Josiah Waterlow.

JOSIAH WATERLOW

Josiah's parents were married around 1722 and Josiah married Frances about 1744. Frances died and was buried at Spitalfields 28th July 1759, soon after the birth of a son Thomas. Josiah married Sarah in 1761, our man, Josiah Waterlow was born November 1762 and baptised Shoreditch from Hoxton 23rd November 1762.

JOSIAH WATERLOW

Josiah married Sarah Ann Robertson about 1786. She was daughter of John and Deborah Robertson and she was baptised at Shoreditch April 24th 1769. They had five children and our interest lies in the second son James. Josiah was buried at Stepney Sept 5th 1817 aged 55. Sarah died around 1835. Interesting to note that the youngest son Richard Frederick died in New Zealand aro und 1896.

James Waterlow

James was born 19th April 1790 at Bethnal Green. He married Mary Crackell 17 October 1812. James was the man who put the family on the map. His address was Huntington Lodge, Peckam, S.E. of London 1843 to 1874. He died 11th July 1876 aged 86 and was buried at Forest Hill Cemetery. On 10th August 1866 Arms were granted to him and they were very grand. They are:- Azure a demi-eagle, displayed erased or, in the beak a crosslet fitchee argent; on a chief of the last three wolves' heads erased sable. Crest- Upon a mount vert an oak tree, in front thereof a plough most proper.

ISABELLA JAMESON WATERLOW, born at 24, Birchin Lane, Cornhill, Tuesday, 2nd February, 1841. — Married Alexander Sowerby Hay, eldest son of Alexander Hay, of Sheffield, Co. York. He born 17th July, 1840. Married at St. Mary's, Reigate, 25th April, 1866.

JOHN GRAEME HAY, born 20th June, 1893; bapt^{d}. at St. Peter's Church, Belsize Park. — ALEC HAY, born 22nd August, 1895; bapt^{d}. at Selkirk. = MARY ALINE

GEOFFREY WILLIAM, born 6th May, 1878; bapt^{d}. at Reigate. — CONSTANCE PHELPS, born 21st Nov., 1879; bapt^{d}. St. Mary's, Reigate.

HERBERT JAMESON WATERLOW, born Tuesday, 24th March, 1846, at 22, York Road, Lambeth; late Commissioner of Lieutenancy for the City of London, Sheriff of London and Middlesex, 1880-81, Alderman of Queenhithe Ward, 1882-87, and Captain in the Hon. Artillery Company. — Married Mary Hannah, youngest daughter of John Hill, of Highbury Place, County of Middlesex. She born 10th April, 1852, married at St. Mary's, Islington, 20th April, 1872.

MARK, born 13th March, 1873; Reg^{d}. at Willesden, bapt^{d}. at Christchurch, Brondesbury. B.A. Oxon., 1896, M.A., 1899; Barrister-at-Law, Inner Temple, 1898; Lieut. 1st V.B. "The Queen's Own" Royal West Kent, 1894.		EDITH GRACE, born 16th Feb., 1874; Reg^{d}. at Willesden, bapt^{d}. at Christchurch, Brondesbury.

James married Mary, daughter of William* Crackell of Hind Court, Fleet Street. She was born 12th June 1792, married 17th October 1812 at St Dunstan's in the West, and died 23rd July 1872 aged 80. Mary Crackel was someone in her own right and we have her ancestry to fit into the tree. James and Mary were really opulent and did things in a big way. The sixth child Sydney was the success story and was made a Baronet and was Lord Mayor of London in 1872-1873. Our man is Alfred James and we are now on more familiar ground.

*HIS COUSIN

ALFRED JAMES WATERLOW

Alfred was born 19th June 1815 and he married Isabella daughter of John Jameson. In another segment of the circle we will trace Isabella away back to the Borders. They had two houses, a great Manor at Reigate and Park Crescent Portland Place. Arms were granted to Alfred on 6th February 1881 and they are very exciting with two lions and a skull and shin bones. They had eleven children including the six daughters we have in a photograph. The Waterlow business certainly was thriving and they were rather grand. Our interest is the second child Isabella Jameson who married Alexander Sowerby Hay.

ALEXANDER SOWERBY HAY

Alexander Sowerby Hay was the eldest son of Alexander Hay of Sheffield and was born on 17th July 1840. He died 30th April 1910. Alexander and his brother achieved considerable positions in industry as young men and were certainly highly competent. Alexander became the main shareholder in Naylor Benson and was engaged in very important steel business with Canada and America back in the eighties. There is a surprising lack of information about the Hay background. The closest I got was of Alexander's father or grandfather being a hard working young man who came down from Scotland to Sheffield. Alexander married Isabella Jameson Waterlow who was born 2nd February 1841 at 24 Birchin Lane Cornhill. Isabella is the very charming lady in our dining room portrait and I am proud to know that my children stem, in part, from her. Alexander and Isabella had eight children and the eldest was Mary Isabella Jameson Hay born 1st May 1867. On June 30th 1892 Mary married James Strathearn Steedman in St Peter's Church Belsize.

JAMES STRATHEARN STEEDMAN

Always called Strathearn, he was born in Selkirk May 23rd 1865 and was the son of John Steedman. We will hope to show the Steedman ancestry in its appropriate segment of our circle. Strathearn and Mary had three surviving children and the youngest was Mary Aline who was born 21st July 1904. Mary Aline called Molly. Molly had the great good fortune to marry James Scott Brown.

JAMES SCOTT BROWN

Born Newstead, 2nd August, 1904. Son of John and Alice Brown. Ancestry can be shown in appropriate segments. Married Mary Aline Steedman in Salisbury, Rhodesia 10th December 1932. Molly and Jim have seven children, these seven have provided twenty seven grandchildren and an encouraging start has been made with three great grandchildren. These great grandchildren can refer to Walderan Waterlo as Great, great, great, great, great, great, great, great, great, grandfather. Sixteen generations. I can supply lots about Jamesons, Steedmans, Scotts, Browns, Halls, Bowers, Millars and maybe a few others. I suggest each person of any of our decendants, add to this material with the ancestry of their husbands or wives.
